Arizona Republican Newspaper, May 19, 1909

Postmaster, Charles O'Neil, of Old Glory, eighty five miles south of Tucson, in Santa Cruz County brought news of the brutal murder there of Preciano Arballo, a wealthy ranchman. Arballo was found dead in a canyon a mile from the Mexican line. His face was battered until it was almost unrecognizable. It is supposed that he was murdered by Mexicans during a mescal drunk, under the supposition that he had a large sum of money on his person. Arballo was the original locator of the famous Tres Amigos mine in Santa Cruz.

Juan Arias Drowned in Santa Cruz.

Last Tuesday afternoon about dusk, when Juan Arias and Pedro Miranda attempted to cross the Santa Cruz River near Senator Harrison's ranch, they were swept from their horses and Arias, who could not swim, was drowned.

Miranda, who is an expert swimmer, made a heroic effort to save his companion, when he time and again saved at the risk of his own life.

From the time the men were swept from their horses, until near mid-night, Miranda remained with Arias, who through fright, was unable to help himself. Miranda says he could have saved himself and his friend, but Arias was terrified at the angry waters, and refused to leave the willow tree, which later carried him to his death.

After remaining all night in a tree, Miranda was rescued more dead than alive, about noon Wednesday by Bert Sorrells and Cyrus Marsteller, who rode out from town, to search for the men, who were supposed to be dead.

The boy of poor Arias was found Thursday forenoon a hundred yards below the place where he was last seen alive by Miranda.

Miranda, who is a brother-in-law of George D. Gross, has almost fully recovered from his terrible experience.

PIONEER WOMAN DIES

Mrs. Minnie Ashburn, widow of the late Oscar Ashburn, and member of a pioneer Santa Cruz county family, dropped dead this morning at her home in Tucson, according to a report received by the Herald Thursday.

Mrs. Ashburn was about 60 years of age. For many years she resided with her husband and family at the Ashburn home near Patagonia. Her husband was killed in an automobile accident several years ago near Vail, Arizona. She leaves three sons and two daughters to mourn her death. Mrs. Ashburn was a pioneer of this section and at one time the Ashburn ranch was the scene of many festivities with Mrs. Ashburn acting as hostess.

Mrs. Ashburn was reported to be in good health and just before noon today she was talking with one of her children when she clutched her heart and dropped dead.

The Rail X ranch, known as the Ashburn ranch was recently sold. Mr. Ashburn was formerly a partner in the cattle business with the vast Vail interests.

Passing of Oscar Ashburn. In the sudden untimely tragic death of Hon. Oscar F. Ashburn, pioneer citizen and member of the Santa Cruz county board of supervisors, which occurred in an automobile accident Thursday afternoon near Vail, on the Nogales-Tucson road, the state of Arizona has lost one of her foremost most valued citizens, his family a kind and loving husband and father, the county a loyal efficient official, and the publisher of THE BORDER VIDETTE, a loyal true friend.

Oscar F. Ashburn was a man among men. He will be missed.

To the bereaved family we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the family residence, 712 North Stone Avenue, Tucson, under the direction of the Masonic lodge, interment being in the Masonic cemetery.

GEORGE W. ATKINSON

Arizona Daily Star, October 18, 1918

Esteemed Pioneer Is Called By Death; End Comes Unexpectedly. George W. Atkinson, Cattleman Passes Away; Funeral Arrangements Incomplete. Arrangements for the funeral of George W. Atkinson, well known pioneer, who died yesterday morning at 6 o'clock at his home, 301 South Main Street, will not be completed until the receipt of instructions from his brother, John W. Atkinson, of Bloomfield, Colo. Although he had been in failing health for two years, Mr. Atkinson had remained on his feet and was down-town as late as Wednesday. His death was entirely (sic) unexpected, and the news of his demise was a great shock to his many friends.

The surviving members of the immediate family are Mrs. Atkinson and four children, Dora, aged 8; Katherine, aged 7; George Jr., aged 5, and Lone, aged 3 1/2 years.

The following is a sketch of Mr. Atkinson's career:

George W. Atkinson was born in Peoria, Ill., in 1839. His father was from Yorkshire, England, and his mother from Virginia. His mother died and his father remarried. In 1860 the family made a trip of 1000 miles by wagon to Denver, Colo. Here young George applied himself to the bricklayer's trade. In 1877 he came to Globe, Ariz., where he established a brickyard. He moved to Calabassas January 1, 1879, where he built a hotel. He retired to Tucson after disposing of his herds and other interests in Calabassas.

In Colorado in 1864 Mr. Atkinson joined Tyler's rangers and had some experience with Indian warfare. He was twice held up by bandits between Tucson and Calabassas in 1879, and on the second occasion was strung up by a noose when he refused to pay $500 ransom. The bandits finally compromised on $30.

His first wife was Miss Julia Jordan, who died in 1907. They adopted two sons, Samuel and Joseph D. In 1908 he married Miss Catherine Deegan.

Mr. Atkinson was a member of the Tucson lodge of Elks, Pioneer Society of Colorado and Arizona Historical Society. He was Pima county supervisor in 1888. He was a Republican in politics.

FOUR MEN SERIOUSLY INJURED WHEN BURIED BENEATH PILE OF SACKS OF SUGAR AT WAREHOUSE

Proto Ayala and Frutuosa Segovia, two of the four men injured at the Grace warehouse, Friday noon, when they were crushed by falling sacks of sugar, died from their injuries.

Ayala died at 2:50 o'clock Friday afternoon, and Segovia at 11:45 o'clock Friday night.

The condition of the two other injured men is critical.

In one of the worst accidents here in years, four men were seriously injured Friday noon when they were buried beneath a pile of sacks of sugar at the Grace warehouse in the north part of Nogales, Arizona.

They were loading the sugar onto railroad cars for the Sonora Commission Company. After having removed a large number of the sacks from the bottom of the stack, the pile toppled over. Each sack contained 100 pounds.

The injured were Lorenzo Molina, Frutuasa Segovia, Francisco Ruiz, and Preto Ayala.

In cars furnished by the 84 Taxi, the injured were hurried to St. Joseph's Hospital for an x-ray examination to determine the extent of their injuries. Dr. A. L. Gustetter, who was called to the scene, accompanied the four to the hospital and said just prior to the x-ray that a hurried diagnosis showed the following manner in which the men are injured.

Molina has a possible fracture of both pelvic bones at the hip joint.

Segovia has a broken arm below the shoulder, and a possible fracture of the left pelvic bone.

Ruiz has a broken back and a possible fracture of the spine, and at least two ribs fractured.

Ayala has a possible fracture of both hips and a dislocated right shoulder.

As the men were carried on a stretcher one by one into the hospital it was a reminder of scenes following a mine disaster.

COL ALLEN T. BIRD IS DEAD

Colonel Allen T. Bird, 81, veteran newspaper editor and pioneer citizen of Nogales, died Thursday morning at the Old Soldier's home in Sawtelle, California, following a lingering illness for several years. Colonel Bird entered the Soldier's Home in April 1929.

Colonel Allen Tracy Bird was a pioneer editor of Arizona. He established The Oasis, a weekly newspaper here in 1894, and continued its publication until about ten years ago. The weekly became a daily and later was absorbed by the Nogales Morning Democrat which suspended publication.

Colonel Bird was well known in pioneer Arizona circles; he came here from California in 1893 and settled at Arizola, near Casa Granda, where he established The Oasis, and later moved his plant to Benson. He came to Nogales in November 1894 and established The Oasis as a weekly publication.

Allen Tracy Bird, veteran of the Civil war, authority on all branches of mining, author and journalist, was born in Madison, Wisconsin, in April 13, 1849. His family was among the pioneer settlers of that state and his grandfather, a contractor and builder, secured the contract to construct the Wisconsin territorial capitol building.

As a young man Colonel Bird learned the printer's trade under his father. When he was fifteen years of age he enlisted for the Civil war during which he served with the 141st regiment and the 11th Illinois cavalry. Returning to his home he resumed his education and in after years became a brilliant newspaper writer, author and mining engineer of international reputation.

Deceased is survived by his wife, Calla N. Bird; three sons, Marshall, Tracy and Duane, and a daughter, Mrs. Enid Rosenberg of California, where Marshall has resided many years; Tracy resides in Yuma and their brother, Attorney Duane Bird, and his mother, reside in Nogales. The widow and Duane were at his bedside when the end came.

It is said the burial of Colonel Bird will occur tomorrow in the beautiful soldiers' cemetery in Los Angeles.

E. A. Carrillo, Sr., Passes Away

Unaware that his son, Eddie A. Carrillo, Jr., was killed in action in New Guinea May 24th, Eddie A. Carrillo, Sr., 51, passenger agent of the Southern Pacific de Mexico railroad at Nogales, died in the S.P. de M. hospital at Guadalajara, Jalisco, Mexico, at 8 p.m. Sunday.

The body was scheduled to arrive here last night on train No. 9 and was to be met at Nogales by an ambulance of the Carrillo Mortuary of Tucson for transportation to Tucson for burial in the Carrillo family plot.

A telegram announcing that Mr. Carrillo's son had been killed in new Guinea almost two months ago was received here Monday, the day following the death of Eddie A. Carrillo, Sr.

The body of the elder Carrillo was accompanied from Guadalajara to Nogales by his widow and his mother, Mrs. Dolores de Carrillo of Tucson. It is not believed they knew of the death of Eddie A. Carrillo, Jr., until they reached Nogales.

The well known railroad official had been in bad health for about a year and was in Guadalajara for about two weeks prior to his death. Before then he was in St. Joseph's Hospital here for two weeks.

A member of a pioneer Tucson family, the elder Carrillo came here in 1920 to work for the railroad. He gained fame as a baseball player and some years ago was a member of the Nogales team of the Arizona State Baseball League. Hal Chase, former big league first baseman, was a member of the same team.

Mr. Carrillo, who was one of Nogales' most popular men, is survived by his widow, and three daughters, Mrs. Adelina Dumas and Mrs. Delia Spang, both of Holyoke, Mass., and Mrs. Mary Antenietta McClure, widow of Sgt. Robert McClure of the Army Air Forces who was killed in the Pacific last July.

Eddie A. Carrillo, Sr., was a grandson of Carlos Velasco who founded the Alianzo Hispano Americano lodge.

ANOTHER PIONEER GONE.

Dr. A. A. Doherty, one of Nogales' oldest, most highly respected pioneer citizens, died suddenly Thursday night at his home in this city, of heart disease, with which he had been afflicted for many years.

The doctor had returned home about nine-thirty with the evening paper and was lying on his bed reading, when the fatal attack came. His wife, who was with him, called his two daughters from another part of the house, and Dr. Chenoweth was immediately summoned, but the doctor passed away before either the young ladies or the physician arrived.

Dr. Doherty had resided in Nogales continuously since 1885, during which time he has been practicing dentistry (sic) here.

He has held many positions of trust - political and otherwise - all of which he filled in an honorable, pains taking, capable manner. Four times he served as a member of the Nogales Common Council.

In the passing of Dr. Doherty, Nogales loses one of her most valued citizens. One who will be greatly missed. He was 58 years of age.

Besides a wife, four daughters, the Misses Ethel, Olive, Edith and Alexia, are left to mourn the loss of a kind and ever-loving husband and father.

The Misses Olive and Edith are teaching in the Nogales schools, Miss Ethel is teaching in Los Angeles, and Miss Alexia, the youngest, is attending the Nogales High school.

Miss Ethel will arrive home today. The funeral will be held from the St. Andrews Church at 11. a. m. tomorrow. Friends desiring to view the body may do so at The Parlors of Geo. B. Marsh, Inc., near the post office.

To the grief-stricken family the entire community extends sympathy.
